

Departments should not hold faculty meetings during University holidays and student recesses except during the week starting the long semesters. Departments should avoid having departmental meeting on matters of policy setting or significant decisions affecting the whole department during the summer session. Exceptions can be made with the approval of the Dean of the College of Engineering.